PULMONARY COMPLAINTS.

No better evidence of the great ourative powers of this EXPECTORANT can be offered than the grateful testimory of those who have been restored to health by its use, and the wide spread popularity which, for so long a period, it has maintained in the face of all competition, and which has created a constantly increasing demand for it in all parts of the world. Here is a portion of the testimony lately received:—

lately received:—
Rev. I. J. ROBERTS, the well known missionary, writing from Canton, China, under date of Juas 25th, 1862, 2018;—
1 find the Expectorant a very valuable medicine; indeed, I cannot do without it, on account of a Chronic Brassi Complaint, which has troubled me more or less for several years past, and which originated from my preaching too loud and long in the open sir. The Expectorant always eases the pain and quiets the symptoms, and, were it not for the requirements of my vocation, I believe would have, ere this, effected a permanent cure."

INSTANTANEOUS RELIEF AFFORDED IN Mr. W. HOSKING, of South Yarra, Australia, writes,

Mr. W. HUNDLEY, or branch of the state of the control of the Colorber State. Base -"I have much pleasure in bearing my testimony to the efficacy of Dr. Jayne's Expectorant. I was suffering from an attack of acute pleurisy, so that I could not breathe without great pain. I tried two or three medicines without avail, and was hourly getting worse, when I was induced to procure a bettle of the Expectorant. I now feel bound in gratifule to say that I experienced almost instantaneous regratitude to say that I experienced almost inst tof, and in a short time I was entirely oured."

IMMEDIATE AND PERMANENT BRLIEF.
Mrs. J. B. FISHER, of St. Johnsville, Montgomery county, N. Y., writes:—
"My little daughter, sged ten years, has always been subject to celd, producing croup, congestion, inflammation of the lungs, or a severe protracted cough. Your Expectorant is the only medicine that ever gave her immediate and permanent relief. I have tried other lung remedias, but they proved useless, and a resert to your Expectorant was the only medicant."

SAVED ONE LIFE AT LEAST.

Mr. A. D. LICEY, of River Styx, Ohio, writes:

"I have a little girl subject to croup, and being airsid to depend on the ordinary remedies have employed a physician for her. Last night, December 27th, 1863, she was taken remedy always at hand, easy of application, and certain in its results.

These Fills are a purely vegetable preparation, and may be taken at any time by either sex without fear of danger. They act upon the bowds mildly yet effectually, and, by their fine tonic, aromatic, and apprient properties, they remove all oppreseive accomulations, regulate the secretions of the liver and bowels, strengthen the atomach, and purify the blood. Unlike many remedies, they do not include liability to take cold or establish a necessity for the habitual nee of purgatives, and are thus strongly recommended as the BEST FAMILY MEDICINE.

M CARBOLL, PITT-STERRY. Down, down, and say I sent you!
Said Phil to the prices to-day.
He has no need to buy, how the squate
But he has only to slaughter away.

With his purchases made, he rules all the trade, And can best all the world at the "Model." Such low prices they pay, all his customers say Phil's a thing or two yet in his noddis.

Now this very week, though he is solling so cheap, The value of meat is much more. No advantage he'll take, a rich harvest to make, Nor a farthing wring out from the poor.

The butchers call sut what's M'Carroll about, Why surely he must have gone mad, He's selling his meat so dreadfully chesp, At his prices to buy we'd be glad.

"Excuse me," said Phil, so quiet and still,
"You've put madness amongst my offence—
Now just take my word, from what I have heard I'll bring some of you back to your senses." He very well knows, in the trade are his focs, At all cost he will keep priose fourn, The gratiers may rice, Phil has got his supplies Not a farthing shall fall on the town.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1864.

An examination of our intelligence from home strongly confirms the idea we formerly expressed that there is no position in which England is more liable to be precipitated into war than when the people become sensible of humiliation. The history of England since Parliaments became dominant in the State establishes this fact. If our readers can point out any period when the national power and authority were specially depressed—when the voice of England was hardly heard in the councils of the world-when her assistance was unasked and her anger despised, they will at the same time touch upon an epoch when the storm of national indignation succeeded the apparent calm. The people, irritated con-tinually by a consciousness of obscurity and depression, have commonly caught at the first opportunity to wreak their accumulated wrath, and a great war, at a large expense, has commonly raised again the national creet and national crest and restored a conscioueness of power.

The majority for the Ministry upon the Danish question was too small to meet this apprehension. When 'we consider what atrength every Government must possess, the majority of 18, in one of the fullest Houses ever majority of 18, in one of the fullest Houses ever gathered even at a great national crisis, cannot be deemed very assuring. The result of diplomacy in Germany has shown how imbecile it is when uncustained by material force, and when there is a foregone conclusion on one side never to appeal to the arbitration of the sword. This is induced a great lesson on which England will have to meditate. It has been asserted that moral means are sufficient to govern the world. If we appeal, it has been said, to the sense of justice in nations, they will assuredly learn rightcourses. There is semathing dream. On the first great occasion, however, when the test is tried, it is seen at once that national ambition disdains any opposition unsustained by force. Napoleon THE FIRST did not differ from the continental monarchs in not differ from the continental monarchs in asserting that might was right. He, indeed, had no difficulty in compiling a battery of arguments which served their momentary purpose, when he had behind them the artillery of a mighty empire. We may fancy how the astute and able Minister of Prussis, carrying out the policy initiated by Frederick called "the Great," smiled at the homilies of Earl Russell. and resided at the position Earl Russell, and rejoiced at the pacific resolutions which left unencumbered the path of ambition. It is, indeed, said with considerable plausibility that a great nation like England has right to express an opinion upon all subjects, and that there is weight in the judgment which she may form and the advice she may give, even though unaccompanied with the slightest impression of physical power. It is, however, very doubtful whether a statesman of any nation should interfere in the affairs of neigh-bouring States unless with the understood resobuting others when the understood resolution to invest his opinion with the authority he wields. It is of no great consequence what Lord Palmenston or Earl Russell may think of international affairs as private gentlemen. To this position they are re-duced when they disclaim all physical force. Others in the nation may be quite as well able to judge. The ordinary organs of opinion may have even more force and clearness in the expression of an idea; but the power of a Cabinet is in its representation of the latent energy of the nation, and not merely in its literary productions. Indeed, those qualities which give success to the writings of publicists are dangerous in a statesman. The simpler his are dangerous in a statesman. The simpler his communications—the more brief his sentences -the shorter his arguments-the fewer his in-ferences-the better. All that is really requisite is a cautious statement of facts which shall admit of no controversy, and the announcement of a policy from which there will be no capricious departure.

The justification given by the Ministers for having refrained from the employment of material force is, that England is incapable of waging war with three monarchies in defence of a feeble ally. France having declined co operation, England folds her arms. The interest of France in opposing the policy of Prussia has been waived in view of the mortification which England mus suffer in the public display of her impo-tence. Surely this is not by any means a course calculated to confirm European peace. France, however, has a clear interest in this question—perhaps greater than England. Ger-many has always been the natural ally of Great Britain, as a power intervening between Russia and France, and occasionally throwing weight into either of the scales which might scuure a larger preponderance. A considerable section of our politicians—who certainly are not men afraid of war—consider that a conflict with Germany would be a blunder. Valuable as Denmark may have been as a barrier against Russian domination, Germany herself, though now in hostility with this gallant State, has ex-ercised, and may still continue to fulfil, an important part in preserving the balance of power. Perhaps the small section of British politicians who have embraced this view most firmly have checked the warlike ten lencies o the community, and prevented an actual con-flict. The feeling of England has sometimes carried her outside the limits of her own interests, and, indeed, led her to espouse a cause from motives not usually admitted into politics.

It was thus in the conflict between young Greece Turkey. It was thus that the Duke of Wellington pronounced the battle of Navarino—in which the Turkish fleet was destroyed by the joint action of England and France-WILLIAM THE FOURTH, then at the head of the Navy, gave some sort of loose in-structions that the enemy should be blown out of the water. This was taken too literally by the commander, who thus assisted to destroy the ficet of a Power naturally allied to Great Britain and even favoured by France.

It is assumed by some writers that the Government of France will avail i self of the opportunity now afforded to impose an obligaion upon Denmark, and to bring the German Powers to reason;—that she will thus earn the gratitude of the Danes, and shew her diplomatic superiority to the British Ministry. But the Danes will hardly forget that it was the refusal of France to co-operate with Great Britain which enabled the German Powers to strip them of their territory. Nor is it safe for any Government—even one so great and overshadowing as that of the EMPEROR-to trifle with the British nation, or to produce a sentiment of humiliation by capricious desertion.

What, then, may we expect by the next ews? Will the war be finally settled? Will Will liberals of Germany rejoice in successes which are intended to strengthen the despotic tendencies of the smaller German Governments Such are the questions to be resolved, but certain we are that the British nation will bear with impatience the wounds inflicted upon the national reputation. Wherever this feeling has existed we have not been very far from

THE conflicts of colonial politics seldom win much attention in England. They are not generally intelligible at a distance where the balance of the contending parties is not appre-ciated, and where the chief actors are personally unknown. But the recent movement in Canada in favour of a federation of the North American colonies has attracted unwonted attention. Though it had its origin in local politics, it touches Imperial politics very

The modern theory of the Colonial Office is to let the colonies do as they like, except where, as in the case of New Zealand, they may come across the English notions of the best mode of dealing with aboriginal popula-tions, and there it takes the administration into its own hands—and makes a mess of it.

But with regard to internal politics the royal teto has been very sparingly used, except for the purpose of protecting vested interests. Tariffs have not been disallowed, however pro-tective they might be, and however injurious to English commerce. Governors have been ap-pointed not to control local politics, but simply to watch the course of events, to see fair beto watch the course of events, to see fair between contending parties, and to represent the sovereignty of the QUERIS.

But Canada occupies a very peculiar position from the fact that it is conterminous to a very power ful, very aggressive, and, as is assumed. powerful, very aggressive, and, as is assumed, not very rerupulous nation, and this gives rise to special anxiety on its account. Nobody in Rogiand, except an official or two before whom it has come as a matter of business, has troubled himself about the rise and progress of the Volunteer force in these colonies, or given more than a passing thought so imposing in wisdom uttered by peaceful to the state of our defences. It is known that lips that it must infuse its benign influence into if ever we were attacked it must be by sea, and the heart of all peoples! Such has been the that, therefore, all the contribution that will be if ever we were attacked it must be by sea, and that, therefore, all the contribution that will be required from Imperial sources towards ou otection will be an adequate fleet, and a small staff to serve as the nucleus of a colonial army. These colonies pay for their own forts and for their own war material.

But Canada is differently situated. It is divided in part by a parallel of latitude, and in part by lakes, from a country far more populous than itself, and possessed now of an immense military and naval power. So long as the civil war lasts, Canada is age enough. Canada is safe enough. The Northern States have quite as much on their hands as they can conveniently manage at present, and though ford of boasting that they can lick all creation, they have the good sense to avoid the test, and prefer fighting their neighbours in detail. But statesmen forecast a possible danger when the war is over. It is true that America will be ought to be glad of repose after so exhausting ought to be glad of repose after so exhausting an effort. But nations cannot be trusted to do what is best for them, least of all when they are heated by passion. The country will find itself in possession of a large army which it may be difficult to dispose of. Canada lies defenceless across the footier and could be existed. frontier, and could be quickly gobbled up. annexation would be some compensation to the great Republic for the losses it has incurred, nd the reconquest of the country, if it were suddenly and firmly seized, would be very difficult. It is not certain that Great Britain would even attempt it. Canada occupies in America the position that one of the weak Powers occupies in Europe.

It retains its independence, not in virtue of its power to defend itself, but by the protection of a larger Power. But the whole value of that protection obviously consists in its reliableness in case of need. Is it a name only, r is it a real power? Denmark till lately thought itself under the protection of three great Powers, but in the critical hour two of them called off and the third had to confess that them called off and the third had to confess that it was not strong enough to play the protector by itself. The connection between England and Canada is no doubt closer than that between England and Denmark, and the obligation to defend a colony of its own subjects is greater than the obligation to defend a foreign though friendly and allied Power. But the colonial tie has been very much loosened of late. The modern economists disparage colonies, grudge the slightest expenditure on their grudge the slightest expenditure on their civil government even in peaceful times, and till more deprecate the expense of their militars defence; and the argument of this school i pressed with the more vigour where the cost is likely to be heavy. The influence of these ideas over the Government is growing, and since the recent humiliation of the country in the Danish affair, it is felt that no one can at present say what are the limits to England's elerance of insult. People who forecast the future are beginning to ask themselves whether. if the question came up in real carnest, England would or could defend Canada. The nation, and especially the military administration, had a little taste of the anxiety inseparable from this responsibility during the excitement of the Trent affair. For a few weeks it was not certainly known whether there would not be war with the United States. The possible contin-gency had to be carefully studied, and the awkwardness of the situation was only too patent. It was the beginning of winter, when the St. Lawrence was frozen, and when access the St. Lawrence was frozen, and when access to the heart of Canada by water was closed. A few regiments struggled across by land with great difficulty, and had war been really declared it would have been absolutely impossible to forward a sufficiency of troops.

But spart from that difficulty, even if Canada were more accessible all the year round than it is, the defence of the frontier is still a difficulty. For military purposes, Canada is a long thin line, and that is of all others the most difficult to defend. The command of the lakes, too, is a matter of paramount importance, and the Americans have more ingress to them than the Canadians have, and could more easily cover them with a flotilla.

a matter of paramount importance, and the Americans have more ingress to them that American provides the mith a foulla.

For this reason the project of a federal wind of the British North American provides find a favour in England. While the colonies are reparset, they would each in a time of difficulty look to the mother country, but they could not be securely relied upon to help one another. But if they were all compactly bound tegether under a central federal executive the estitic force would be available for concentrating on the defence of any threatened point.

Federal unions are certainly not allogether reliable. The case of the United States in the mother concentrating on the matter. BY BRIGHAL (CHIMINAL) CASE.

THE QUEEN Y. UNDERWOOD AND ANOTHER.

This was a special case from the last sittings of the guyene Court in its Criminal Jurisdiction. The prisoners—Underwood and Wise—had been tried before the Chief Justice under as indictment for robbery with violence, but were conviced of the minor effence of largeny. At the instance of Mr. Innes, who appeared for the prisoner Wise, two points were reserved. First, that there was no case to go to the jury, as against Wise; secondly, that, under an indictment for robbery with violence, there call not be, legally, a conviction for largeny.

Mr. Siephen appeared for the prisoner, and the Solicitor-General in support of the conviction.

INSOLYENCY JURISDICTION.

IN RE THE TOMAGO COAL MINING COMPANY.—INSOLVENCY APPEAL.

This was an appeal against a decision by the Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Relatice as to the percof of a claim. The appellant—Mr. A. B. Threaby—was a creditor of the company above named for £2691, and hold debentures to be amount of £2600. He claimed to treat his debet for this amount as a secured debt, and to prove only as a concerned creditor for the odd £91, being the interest on his debentures. But the Chief Commissioner held that the debentures were virtually no more than promisency notes, and did not operate as a binding security upon the property of the company, consequently that Mr. Throeby must come in as a concurrent creditor for the full amount of his claim. The decision by his Honor was appealed against upon the ground that these debentures being issued by the directors of the company is Act of Incorporation, were chargoable upon the property of the company lies a mortgage.

The Autorney General and Mr. Butler appeared for the appellant, and Mr. Darley and Mr. Salomons for the respondents.

An objection was taken to the jurisdiction of the Court upon the ground that the decision by the Chief Commissioner was extra judicial, he having no power to direct a claimant how he should shape his claim. This objection was, however, overruled, and the argument proceeded with. It was not concluded when the Court rose, but will be resumed to-day.

PROOD RELIEF MERTING.

[PROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

A PUBLIC meeting was held in the School of Arts,
West Maitland, on Thursday afternoon, for the purpose of receiving the final report of the Flood Relief Committee. Very few persons were present, which, no doubt, was owing to the early hour at which the meeting was called, namely, 3 p.m. Amongst those present may be mentioned the Colonial TreasurerThe chair was taken by Mr. J. F. Burns, M.L.A. who, after reading the advertisement convening the meeting, called upon the hon. secretary, Rev. J. R.
Thackeray, and R. Strachan, treasurer, to read the following reports:—

Thackeray, and R. Strachan, treasurer, to read the following reports:—

"Final Report of the West Maitland Flood Relief Committee.

"It will be in the recollection of all, that during the present year dating from its commencement, it pleased Divine Providence to visit this district, together with many others, with a series of floods devastating in their effects, bringing destitution and consequent misery upon many industrious and honest people.

"Large tracts of country that were smiling into Large tracts of country that were smiling into harvest were rendered barren, and whole families were thus thrown upon the charities of their neighbours, many of whom had not sufficient to provide for their own necessities.

"Under these circumstances, your committee was formed. A public meeting of the inhabitants was fred in Pebruary, and resolutions affirming the necessity of immediate action were unanimously passed. At that time, however, compressively little was done, as it was imagined by many that the sufferers would be able to tide over the difficulty. But when flood after flood, in rapid succession, again was poured upon us but with swiffleint time intervening just to allow of the land again to be cropped, and in each instance the results of iscinstry to be swept, way, the sympathies of the public were thorough the sufficient of the sufficient of the public was the proverty, all willed in the sufficient of the country of their poverty, all willed in the sufficient of the country of their poverty, all willed in the sufficient of sufficient of the sufficient of s leaving 516 cases actually relieved, and showing an average loan of £7 16s each, the highest loan granted being £26, and the lowest £8. 6d.

"It will be pleasing to the contributors to the funds to know with what gratitude the loans of seed have been received, and that large tracts of land to the extent of say 15,000 acres have been cropped by means of their liberslity.

"At the commencement of the relief movement it was deemed adviable for all the several districts to contribute to one general fund, each having its local committee investigating cases, and drawing orders on their own tradesmen. This arrangement has been found to work well with respect to East Maitland and this committee, but the Morpeth committee, believing they could best render assistance independently, determined upon separate action, with what result, we believe, remains to be seen.

"The best thanks of your committee are kereby given to the central committee, Sydney, for their kind co-operation and generous sympathy. Much kindless has been evinced by the secretary and treasurers, and to their promptness in voting and afterwards for warding supplies no alight measure of the success claimed by your committee is due.

"It has lately been the custom, in referring to the Government, to speak in terms of censure for their want of liberality; but in the present instance your committee have to report with much pleasure that the claims made on behalf of the fund were met at once by a generosity unexpected as pleasing. The promise to supplement the contributions by an equal amount from the public Treasury was at once fulfilled, and the sum thus obtained served to swell the available balance to considerable extent.

"In conclusion, your committee cannot separate without a word of congratulation as to the spirit in which their deliberations have been conducted. Though its members represent all classes and shades of opinion, both religious and political, it is pleasing to know that each has had but one object and one desire, namely to ascertain how the

"The Tressurer's statement herewith annexed will place the necessary information before you, as to receip's and expenditure. Progress reports have from time to time been submitted and approved, and the finsi result duly sudited will now be submitted.

"Soon, then, may plenty be seen in our midst, and by Divine Providence our fields may yield their increase. May the stern realities of the past teach the labourer the great necessity of laying by in store for the future day, which may be one of calamity, and may we all acknowledge and realise the great desirability of friendship and goodwill, remembering that we are 'members one of another.'

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Prom 20th September to the 23rd September.

The Rev. Aston Buzacott, for many years missionary at Ravatongs, in the South Seas, died at his residence, Melbourne Cottage, Darlinghurst, Sydney, on Tuesday, September 20th, much regretted by all who knew him, either personally, or in his office as a minister of the Gospel. The remains of the decessed were interred in the burisl ground in Devonshire-street on the 22rd instant.

The Choral Society of St. Mary's gave a complimentary concert last Tuesday night, to their conductor Mr. W. J. Cordner. There was a large and brilliant audience capable of appreciating the musical success of the enterthis ment.

The North Sydney Branch of the Irish National Lesgue held a meeting on Tuesday evening, at the Rose of Australia Inn, George-street North, when Mr. W. Sigerson delivered a lecture on the "Irish Volunteres of 82."

Mr. Walker, M.L.A., has, at the desire of his numerous friends, published his instructive lecture on Australian Literature, recently delivered by him at the School of Arts at Windsor.

Mr. G. Rice, of Lower George-street, has just slaughtered a splendid bullock, weighing 1382 lbs., which took the prize at Windsor, Maitland, and Parramatts. It was bred by Mr. Schofield, of Windsor.

A deputation, appointed at a public meeting held at Wolla ngong last week with reference to a proposed residency from Bulli to Wollongong, waited on Tuesday morning on the Minister for Works, for the purpose of presenting the memorial shopted on that occasion. The deputation consisted of Mr. Haworth, M.L.A., Mr. J. W. Wilsbire, and Mr. Zlotkowski. The Minister for Works promised to lay the memorial before the Government.

On Monday last, Mr. Solomon Cohen, late justice of the pace, was committed at Forbes to take his trial for perjury at the next Circuit Court, at Bathurst. A full Bench, consisting of fall the magistrates in the district, sat upon the case, which created great excitement.

Gold in payable quantities is reported to have been found at the memorial before the Souther capitalists.

On Thursday evening last, a tea meeting, followed by a public meeting, was held in the Independent Church, at Balmain, the object being to rsise funds to pay off the debt remaining on the building. About 360 persons sat down to an excellent tes, at the termination of which Mr. John Fairfax, in accordance with previous announcement, took the chair, and a public meeting was held, at which $1000 8s. was either paid or promised.

The Atterney General has declined to prosecute.

Slood Ss. was either paid or promised.

The Attorney-General has declined to prosecute Michael O'Brien, the cab-driver, who, on the 1sth instant was committed to take his trial for manisanghter, for having driven over a child.

On Monday evening last the Bishop Metropolitan of Sydney presided over a public meeting, convened in the Church School-house, in furtherance of the revival of the Bathurst Branch of the Church Society.

General Grant.—Major-General Ulysses S. Grant was born at Point Pleasent, Claremont County Ohio, on the 27th of April, 1822. He is therefore in his forty-third year. His ancestors were Scotch, which doubtless accounts for his pertinacity of character. His early youth was spent at his native place, and he obtained his education at a district school near Georgetown, Brown County, Ohio. He was not considered a remarkably bright youth, and was nicknessed by his mother "Useless" Grant, instead of Ulysses. But there are several events of his early life which give evidence of his smartness.—New York Herald.

Four persons left a public-house, near Dewabury, for a row on the Calder. On leaving, the landlady said, in a jocular tone, "Don't go, you will all be drowned," on which one of them replied, "Not we; go with us and we will give you a row." They hired a small-boat at a boat-hause near at hand, and they had only been in it a quarter of an hour when the boat was seen by a boy to expelse while the men were changing positions. Melancholy to relate, they were all drowned.

It is said that a Russian squadron of evolution will shortly touch at the Swedish and Danish ports in the Baltic.

By the barque Constance we have six days' later raws from Auchland, her dates being to the 9th instant.

The Weckly News of 3rd instant says:—
The past week has probably been the most markedly devoid of military news of any we have had during the last fourteen months.

At Tauranga sil is quiet, and, it would seem, subsiding into a comfortable state of peaceful settlement with all reasonable rapidity.

At the Waskato there is no sign of a single native enemy, and the worst signs of war apparent in the districts so recently the theatre of our grand contest for supremacy, are recorded in the shape of courtsmartial upon delinquent soldiers, who have been guilty of acts of violence worthy of the most savage Maories.

Not even an old Maori lady seems to have graced the week's proceedings by a surrender, and it must be confessed that the aspect of affairs seems to justify the popular opinion, that if peace has not been made, war is gradually dying cut from the want of fuel to main it.

What is going to be done at Targnaki no one known.

is granully oping on from the want or new year is an it.

What is going to be done at Taranaki no one knows, and, what is perhaps even more surprising, nobody prefesses to know. That something must turn up, if we only wit kng enough for it, even at Treanaki, may be preity safely asserted, and so far as uppear, and whether it terminates in a furious onalaught upon our post, or a break up finally between the Northern and knowletter it terminates in a furious onalaught upon our post, or a break up finally between the Northern and it withern rebels, it can hardly be otherwise than an idvantage to the cause of ultimate peace and order.

On the same topic the Delity Southern Cross of 9th instant remarks:—

Although we have passed the crisis of the war, and indications of peace are alowly being developed, it would be unrafe to predict that the war is over. It is the general helif, however, that there will be no more fighting in the province of Auckland, and that the scene of the next conflict—if such is to take place—will be at Taranaki.

There has been a further surrender of Tauranga ribels, to the number of about forty or fifty, including women and children. They were residents of the island called "The Mayor," about twenty miles north of Tauranga, but they belong to the same tribe. We reed hardly asy that all chance of a renewal of hoseilities in this district is at an end. The natives have gratified their werilke propensities, and have improved their peculiary prospects in no slight degree. The settlement of the milities in this part of the country is being carnied on assistatorily, and the future of Te Papa, the site of the township, in Tauranga harbour, may be predicted to be a very prospectous one.

The Sanddy, Captain Marks, which has done such good service during the war, arrived on Monday, from Tauranga, but they be done on the same tribe. We have later news from Maketu. Friends,—All the pakehrs residing in Auckland, listen all of you to our thoughts. We had no evil thoughts formerly. In February we held a meeting at Whakatane.

The word at that meeting was that Friends,—All the pakehrs residing in Auckland, listen all of you to our thoughts. We had no evil thoughts formerly. In February we held a meeting at Whakatane. The word at that meeting was that the men of Whakatane and the Awa-o-te-Atua thould remain quiet; that word was confirmed by us. Hori Kerei went to Tauranga and saw the General (the efficir in command), and asked him if he had come to fight; but to reside upon tha piece of land at the Papa. Hori said that was good. The General asked him if the Ngatiporou were not forming a war party. Hori said that there was an army coming. Hori then returned to Maketu. Tchi said, "The Ngatiporou must clear out of my house." Horis asid, "Well and good; I will tell them." Tohi also said, "Let them some past this way." Hori said, "That won't do. Your proposal is not good; it is inviting war here." Tohi said, "See, listen. I have caused troops to be stationed at Maketu. Go you and clean your gun." Hori said, "Very well." Hori ceme back to the Awa-o-te-Atua, and found the Ngatiporou and the Whatchea there. Hori said to that party, "Return, do not go by way of Maketu; let the army go by way of Kaingaroa." The army, however, would not listen to our words; they still persisted and disputed with Hori, but at last consented to go by way of this grant with the good by way of the Rotolii. Enough men were killed at the Rotolii, and soldiers were stationed at Maketu. In April, Tohi's ward came to us. VICTORIA.

The City of Adelaide brings papers to the 20th instant from Melbourne.

The Argus of that date remarks that the dispute between the Victorian and New South Wales Governments on the subject of the Murray River traffic complicates fast, and promises an early crisis. The subject-matter lies in a nut-shell. That the New South Wales Government proposes, now that the Victorian bank of the Murray River is reached by rail, to levy berder duties, is not our grievance. We have no earthly right to object to that, however unpleasant; but our neighbours set up an absolute claim to the river itself, and to supreme control over the vessels and goods that float on its beneficent bosom. The ugly sapect of the case is that they say, in effect, that the river is theirs, and goods carried thereon dutiable to them. This right is contested by our own Government; but none the less were we warned that on and after yesterday their alleged rights would be put in force, even unto confacation of goods and vessels. Rumour was rife yesterday that our Government intended to take such section as should put this colony in a proper position; and though it was almost at the last moment that anything was done, yet some steps have been taken to give effect to our denial of the right of the New South Wales Government to interfere with Victorian goods not brought to nor landed on their shores. By the noon train to Sandhurst, yesterday, Mr. Police Inspector Hase and six constables started for Echues, and we learn that their errand is to protect Victorian property, if unrighteously interfered with. Of course a collision will be avoided, if pessible; but it would seem that, if our neighbours' claim is to be asserted in all its integrity, some acrt of clash is inevitable. One effoct will probably he, that a definite issue will be joined, and the Imperial Government appealed to for a decision. According to the Casilemene News, a report was circulated in that town on Monday evening, that a disturbance had take p

The sellerest ster estimates the profits made and realised by mining scrip sales at the Lydiard-street Corner last week at over £20,000 sterling.

The Gipps Lend Times states that the value of the yearly shipments from Port Albert and Welshpool has increased from £16,702 in 1861, to £86,402 in 1863, this being exclusive of the exports of gold. The quantity of gold extered at the Port Albert Customs last year was 25,544 oz.

A narrow escape from death occurred the other day at Myrtleford, which is thus noticed by the Ocean Constitution: A man named Joseph Edwards, was sitting by a hitchen fireplace during a strom, when a thunderbolt came down the chimter, burned a hole in Duggan's het, singed his hair, and made a large scar down his back. The thunderbolt then entered the wall, and exploded with a loud report. Duggan's clothing was all in flames, and he was senseless for several hours. It was at one time thought that he was paralysed, but he is now rapidly recovering.

Under the heading "Entrapping young women," a correspondent writes as follows to the Daglasford Mercury.—"Some time since public attention was drawn to the manner in which respectable female setwents are entrapped by the owners of dancing saloons and low places of resort. A case of this kind has recently come under my own observation, and, although the end was not accomplished, yet will serve to show the mischievous effects which are likely to ensue from the abominable system pursued. A respectable pung woman entered the office of a person who shall be natureless, in Melbourne, paid the registration fee, and was introduced to a so-called respectable lady of Dayle-ford. The terms were agreed upon, and, as the family were said to be most respectable, the would-be servant was doubless highly pleased that she had obtained a situation so called respectable in the value of the payles ford.

highly pleased that she had obtained a situation or suitable, in a quiet respectable family. Judge, Mr. Editor, of her surprise, when on alighting from the crach, she was introduced to a company of Daylesford dar eing girls, bearing, as could at once be seen, the stamp of degradation and loss of virtue. Fortunately, the girl did not lose her presence of mind, but at once requested the coachman to direct her to some place of shelter for the night, which he did, and in the morning she found a friend whom she had previously known, and at whose house she is at present resioning."

The Age of the 19th instant says:—Livingstone, a theroughburd house, by Fandange, out of Margaret of Anjou, and Chester Empetor, a Suffolk oart stallion, arrived by the Lincolnshire, on Saturday. But houses are in instruct econdition, and have evidently been well-cared for on the voyage. The latter was a horse of some note at home, and was highly commended by the judges at a recent exhibition of the Royal Agrisultural Society. Both will probably be forwarded to Sydney. By the same vessel have arrived a number of song birds, including seven nightinglies, the gift of Miss Burdett Coutts to the Victorian Acclimatisation Society, and several varieties of English game. Lord Lonsborough has forwarded seven hares, promising to send, in January, a number of partidiges. There are also consigned to the society, by the Zoological Society of London, a pair of red-billed tree ducks, and a number of he dge and mountain sparrows, chaffinches, thrushes, blackbirds, &c. Amonget the other shipments are seven rooks, for Mr. J. T. Summer; a pair of Japan pheasants and an Italian greyhound, for Mr. E. Wilsen; and a large number of canaries, bullinches, &c., brought out by Mr. Thatcher, to whose care and stention the safe arrival of the whole is chiefly attributable.

The proprietor of the M. A. Medi, Mr. Masthews, has commenced an action for libri against Mr. C. E. Glass, the promistor of the Californies of Mr.

The proprietor of the M. A. Mail, Mr. Matthews, has commenced an action for libel against Mr. C. E. Glass, the proprietor of the Castlemaine Daily Nees, for the publication of certain articles in the latter paper, in which it was hinted that Mr. Matthews, in conjunction with Mr. Whitehorn, had not acted very honourably towards Mr. De Lacy, the patentse of the gold-solving process. Damages are laid at $2000. Another action has also been commenced by the editor of the Mail for similar remarks made against him.

A few days since (cays the Age) we gave, from the Tailbet Leader, a few particulars of an extra-relianry rush of pure air which had been liberated by the workmen in the shaft of the Mount Greenock Extended Geld Mining Company. One of the men, it will be remembered, when at work on Beturday when-noer, drove his pick through a piece of soft bluestone rock at the bottom of the shaft, which is 176 feet deep, and immediately on withdrawing the pick the pure air came forth in great volume. Our contemporary in its issue of Friday last supplies the following additional perticulars:—"On Monday the mean descended the shaft as usual, and found that the phenomenon still continued. It presented no impediment to work, however, and therefore the men proceeded to sink as usual. On opening out some of the rock they found it very perous, and from each cavity broken upon an additional jet of air presented itself. At the present time the air is coming into the shaft not only from the bottom but also from the sides, and there seems very little chance of the supply being exhausted. To add to the singularity of the phenomenon, the shaft, which was formerly wet, is now dry, as the water draining into the shaft from its sides at once disappears through those sirholes in the rock. No doubt in the course of time the operations of the company will throw further light on the affair; in the meantime it is certainly a very great mystery, and one deserving of special notice on the part of the curious in such matters."

is possible this species of clover may prove useful for sheep or the alpeas on rocky meagre soils, where its strong roots would sid it in arquiring a hold of the soil, and yield herbage of a less coarse description. One piece of ground had been trenched but not drained, and the subsoil very injudiclously brought to the surface; the subsoil being of an impervious nature the water stagnated in the soil, so the great injury of the growing crop. In such cases, if the land is not thoroughly drained, the best plan is to raise the land in ridges of 18 feet or 20 feet in width, making open drains at these distances to the depth of the trenching, so as to carry off the supershundant water. The least season's crop of grapes was but very indifferent, which perhaps may be accounted for from the fact of the existence of too much wet in the sub-soil, combined with a very unpropitious season. The vines are now trained on a different system to that hitherto pursued; the style is a modification of the long-rod or alternate with a very unpropitious season. The vines are now trained on a different system to that hitherto purvued; the style is a modification of the long-tod or alternate system. A person of the ground whereon vines are planted is more fitted for willows, the soil being saturated with moisture. Near the house are specimens of popular trees and shrubs; a fine plant of Acacia vertile, now covered with its golden flowers, is a perfect picture. Among the trees are the Chinnes eim (Ulmus Chinensis), which seems to succeed well; pittosporums, grevilleas, Moreton Bay fig. silkworm mulberry, and others. Mr. Mitchell seems to believe in the principle that mangolds should be grown upon highly missaured ground, thus raising upon a limited area a larger amount of crop than would be produced upon a piece of ground three or four times the sizes in short, he may be supposed to adopt as his motto the old adage. "What is worth doing at all is worth doing well." Preference is given to Satton's crange globe (a splendid sample). There are three or four varieies of mangolds grown on ground of the same quality, as the long red, ted globe, and orange globe; of which the last named is the best. This root crop was sown in December of the previous year, the heavy rains which fell in the tariy part of the summer admitting of sufficient moisture to raise almostmany kind of crop at that season. The raising of a heavy crop of mangolds upon well-manured land is doubly profitable, as the soil remains in first-rate order for grasses, corn, or any crop used in the retation. Mr. Mitchell is a therough believer in green manuring, feeling assured that this system of farming must become an important part of what may be called an Australian system any crop used in the retation. Mr. Mitchell is a therough believer in green manuring, feeling assured that this system of farming must become an important part of what may be called an Australian system of farming, and especially in districts which are distant from centres of population. The much lauded imperial sugar beet seems to answer admirably; much has been said in favour of it, and consequently we may expect much from the extended cultivation of this best; it is superior in its nutritive qualities to its congeners the mangolds. Mr. Mirchell intends to select the best formed roots of Sutton's crange globe mangold for the purpose of Sutton's crange globe mangold for the purpose of Saving seed for his own sowing; and to make aure of saving seed for his own sowing; and to make aure of Mr. Mirchell intends to select the best formed roots of Sutton's crange globe mangold for the purpose of saving seed for his own sowing; and to make sure of maintaing the purity of the variety, he only intends to grow one kind—a practice which it would be well if farmers followed more generally. He purposes, also, to save the seed of the imperial sugar best, but as the two varieties might become mixed, he will have the sugar best planted at a place some distance from the farm: Mr. Mitchell has obtained a few seeds of the Vicia macrocurpa, an Egyptian vetch, which from the high character received with it he is inclined to think will prove valuable as a substitute for horse beans or gram, seeing that the former do not succeed well in our climate, while it is too cold for the latter.—The demand arises for them for their talents, by new conditions, and things, and circumstances."—Scientific Record, 1822.

EXTENSION OF OVERLAND ROUTE.

It has been saked me, when speaking on the postal conveyance question, why not commence your system of transit overland from the present Australian depot at King George's Sound; by taking up the English mail boxes from the steamers of the P. and O. Company, and forwarding them thence, overland, to their respective destinations? My answer is, from King George's Sound to Adelaide, by the head of Spencer's Guif, is a distance overland of about 1800 miles; from Adelaide to Melbourne, 550 miles; thence to Sydney, 630 miles; thence to Brisbage, 600 miles, from Adelaide to Melbourne, 550 miles; thence to Sydney, 630 miles; thence to Brisbage, 600 miles, of the country of that indefatigable explorer, Mr. Eyre, and also by more recent explorers from Adelaide westward to the head of the "Australian Bight," we find there are about 1200 miles of the country between Adelaide and the west an absolute and irreclaimable waste, valueless for any useful purpose, and therefore planting a line of conveyance in or through such country could have no redeeming feature when looking to its future prospects.

I am aware that by keeping a more northern direction than that of Mr. Eyre, a better country would develope itself; but this would not answer our present purpose, as it would involve a very great expenditure without a prospect of a corresponding result. But taking the social and moral aspect, as well as the business view of the matter, the above route would have other and more serious objections. Much has been said lately in the columns of the Australian Press about the best means to show our opinion of this question, is at once for these colonies to enter into a solemn compact with each other, to "cast of" our western brother, and, if I may be allowed the expression, to "cut the painter," and let him go before the wind. We have no right to provoke or show a quarrels me disposition or temper towards our "Imperial m (and a pretty meas some of us have made of our privileges). If she be disposed for a little to indulge the whims of our rakish brother, why, then, let her. the more willing to leave the result excited much board our anactimostus patents are dead ha hands we should let it be known to him that should he do so, we shall, by authority of our by-laws, "Sow them under hatches;" make them "pipe for all hands" until they go of their own consent." "to Davy's locker,"—and—but I find I am drifting amongst the the painter," and fall to recognise him either in our social or commercial transactions, and we shall soon have him "brought to his bearings," under "bare poles," by "arress of weather." I propose, then, to act upon this idea, and stone stratege to change the of North Australia, either to Van Diemen's Guiffer Victoris River of Stokes, and thence across the continent, to the cites of the southern and castern schoard, by a conshined system of "pneumatic take," "surperasion railway," and "electric telegrate, and the boxe containing the European and Indian malls only, taking them on board at Pointe (Saig, and conveying them to North Australia, calling the Butch East Indies; or, which perhaps the butch East Indies; or, which perhaps the Butch East Indies; or, which perhaps and make the conveyance of passengers, their lought, and the boxe containing the European and Indian malls only, taking them on board at Pointe Couper's Bay," on the southern shore of Java, to which place the passengers and mais might be brought across the island, from Butavia; there would soon spiring up a require parameter of the southern and eastern schoard a horizontal control of the southern and male to Van Diemen's Guif, or the city of "alexandra"—that is to be From them, and the best of the southern and Eastern passengers and mais might be brought across the lained, from malls to Van Diemen's Guif, one the variety of the search of the southern and Eastern passengers and the courter of the southern and Eastern passengers and the courter of the southern and Eastern passengers and the courter of the southern and Eastern passengers and the courter of the southern and Eastern passengers and mains to Van What we have to do is to see that none of his hands board our sanctimonious pleasure yacht, and we should let it be known to him that should he do so, we shall, by authority of our by-laws, "Stow them under hatches;" make them "pipe for all hands."

union, or smalgamation of construction and operation, and under the superintendence, working, and management of one set of officials, all and each working and combining together in an efficient, effective, and economic system of action and operation.

The "pneumatic tube" I propose to be raised upon pillers or tressels, at a distance of 150 feet the entire length of the line, composed of wood, iron or bricks, seconding to the requirements of the locality and ground through which the line must pass. This tube to be formed and composed from the best galvanited iron, and of sufficient diameter to admit the English letter boxes, manufactured at the best iron works in England, expressly for the purpose intended, and corrugated and shaped according to instructions and specifications to be forwarded for that purpose. The pillers or tressels to vary from fitten to forty feet high, with a view to, in some measure, counterset the undulations of the ground. I propose to place at such post towns as are at present in existence along the line, and where there are none such, at about every twenty five miles, according to circumstances, stations with the necessary number of "vats" or "tanks," made of iron and wood, properly bound, and sufficiently large and strong to contain atmospheric pressure of sufficient density as required, from which the table will be fed by the means of pipes and stop-cocks, according to instructions. At these stations, or post-offices, I propose to at ach spurs or branches from the main tube, it rough which the carriage or carriages intended for, and beforeigh to that particular station, will, by the application of certain mechanical arrangements, energe from the main tube, be taken possession of ty the proper officer, and forwarded to their respective destinations, according to the facilities for so doing, and the evil, bit bed rule. I propose to filt the "vats" or "tarks" already silluded to with compressed air, cqual at least to three atmospheres inself to collect, and compress the material atmosph by which we propose so great a change in our postal strangemens. We shall begin by assuming that it is now generally understood that the pressure of autrosphere extending from the surface of the earth to the autnost limit of dilation, presses upon the base of one square inch, with a force equivalent to fifteen pounds, nearly, and we shall be led directly to the principles from which the subsequent inferences are to be adduced. It is convenient, however, for our object to consider the density uniform, or the same throughout the entire column, the height of a column of air of uniform density, and weighing fifteen lbs., is found to be equal to 28,276 feet. Now, by the principle of mechanics, the velocity by which a fluid rushes into a perfect vacuum depends upon its altitude above the orifice, and is the same as the velocity acquired by a heavy body in falling freely through this altitude; hence we have 1349 feet per second, which gives, when calculated, 919 miles an hour, and which is the free and unrestricted velocity of the air, into a perfect vacuum; the orifice being near to the surface of the earth.

We are now prepared to consider the question itself. Suppose a tube or pipe thirry miles long, which is the distance I propose between the stations on the pneumatic tabe line—depending in some measure on circumstances. Let this tube or pipe be exhaustion; now, suppose the vacuum to be perfect, which is practice cannot be the case—but we are examining the subject theoretically. The exhaustion being completed let the sir-tight end of the tube be suddenly opened, and the air which was before excluded will now enter with the velocity of 1349 feet per second; and, if there be no resistance arising from friction or otherwise, it will maintain the same velocity throughout the entire extent of the vacuum tube, and will onnequently reach the other end of the tube along with 1, having travelled during the time it has been in motion at the rate of 919 miles an hour. Now, Sir, this result is correct in theory, but in practi sixty or eighty miles per hour. We are, therefore, the more willing to leave the result with confidence to the future, expecting, as we do, to realise a much

It will be always borne in mind that the dectric triegraph is to be connected with, and embodied in, my scheme, and a double line of wire, with insulators and engines, will be all that will be required to complete the entire system.

I must not forget to state that it is a portion of my scheme to connect Tasmania to the Australian continent by a "submerged pneumatic tube," manufactured for that purpose, and anchored and buoyed from tape Otway, via King's Island, to Port Sorrell, thence overland to Launceston, thence by pneumatic tube and suspension railway to Hobarttown, thence by express mail steamers to New Zealand, and thence overland to its southern shores if required. Nor do I consider it improbable that the time is not very far distant when North Australia and Timor or Java will be connected by submerged tubes, whence it will proceed slong the whole line through Java, Flores, and the other islands to Sumatra and the Achen Heads, where the mails and passengers will be received from the Aden ships direct, and thus we would be enabled to command the whole of the vast and unlimited requirements of the Anglo-Dutch Indies, or the Oriental Archipelago, by the introduction of my system, and extending it to these localities, but this, for the future—the present is the connectung of the north and southern shores of our island-continent.

These, Sir, may be stirrling propositions, and I have reason to believe there are many even intelligent men, whose minds are so constituted that they are unable to get out of the beaten track of our every-day matters; while there are others in existence who no doubt will, without thinking, condemn, and I feel there are a goodly number who will laught at the ides, because he sees his brother laugh; but nevertheless the science of truth, and the truth of science, must go hand in hand to convince and to accomp ish that for w

A similar remet was published some years since by a gentleman in this colony, who is justly an authority in matters relating to natural history. It has been my good fortune to see a crow's neet. It nearly resembled that of the Australian mappie, but was larger; built, like it, of twigs, and piaced in the totax of a tree at some height above the ground; the eggs were rather round in form, a pale seablue, mottled with purple and brown blotches. The young brood were hatched in August or September on the Old-bury Estate, near Berrima. The nestlings we frequently saw very spring, as they were brought into the orchards as con as the charries began to ripen, and were very destructive to the crops, being fed by the parent birds in a bountiful manner.

The remarks republished from the Grenville Advocate are worthy of the greatest attention, in regard to the value of birds as in cet destroyers.

Cistoms in Society.—When the ledies retire after dinner, why does the master of the house flick his table napkin after his wife, who leaves the room lest? Is it a superstition? And why does he take her place at the table, and say, "Now, then," as if the enjoyment of the evening were really going to commence? And why does the gentleman who has hitterto been the most stupid and dismal suddenly begin to grin, and proceed to rattle out jokes which certainly require the absence of ladies—and of gentlemen. As I am preparing a work on etiquetic, I shall be glad of any enlightenment on these points.

We have a tradition that a Smith was knocked down in the Lord George Gordon riots, and an aged member of the family, resident in almshouses at Alogate, thinks that either a Smith ("a smart young dandy") whom she knew in youth, or his friend Brown ("who went up in a bulloon") came home very tipsy after the fireworks in honour of the Allied Sovenigns, and these facts may serve as clues. I shall be glad of an early reply, for a visior to the house lately remarked that she would not wonder if Mr. Smith got knighted one of these fine days, and it may be well to be prepared for Herald's Cellege.

Addressed to Marcellus, the word "bird" would be aboutd, unless Hamlet's madness were breaking out very early indeed, and we cannot suppose that the clegant Homlet would use a term equivalent to the "old cock" of the colloquial life of our time. But I see one "Birde" mentioned as among the players in the Globe company. Theory of Legulation. By Jeremy Bentham. Translated from the French of Etsenne Dumont. By R. Hilder, (Trubner and Co.)

Think is one joint in which our social system wants a little change of phrase; it is the mode of expressing successions of human life. We say that one generation succeeds another; which is not true, even when we speak of father and son. There is a dovetail process which it might take the differential calculus, for aught we know, to explain in totality. To make a beginning, we remind our readers that when one generation succeeds another, there is a third which belongs half to one and half to the other; there is another which belongs one-third to one, and two-thirds to the other; and so on. The member of a diversity of the other, according to circumstances; if he be a reformer, he will probably rank with those of his second half of life.

Take two men who have each made a strong mark on our literature: Sam. Johnson and Walter Scott; these two are beyond doubt predecessor and successor.

Take two men who have each made a strong mark on our literature: Sam. Johnson and Walter Scott; these two are beyond doubt predecessor and successor. Bentham dovetails with them: Johnson read his first writing and attributed it to Dunning; and Scott died in the same year with him, being a quarter of a century younger. Now take two contemporaries of Bentham, almost literally contemporaries, for there is nearly the same year of birth and of death to all three: we speak of Hannah More and William Scott, Lord Stowell. We know the lady and the lawyer as recorded members of the Johnsonian age: but we are little apt to think of Bentham in connection with their time. Hannah More gained the earliest name, Lord Stowell the second, and Beatham the third. In fifty years the importance of the three will be in reverse order: Bentham will be known to the world as a name which solitar per ord; Stowell will be quoted on questions of law; and Hannah More with be a very respectable lady, sung in the biographical dictionary, except when she is permitted to walk out with Johnson or with Garrick.

At the beginning of this century our law wanted not merely a reformer, but a successful advocate of the dectrine that reform was possible, and capable of discussion upon principle. A reader of Blackstone will see that the crudite and, in many matters, liberal professor, looks upon our code as settled wisdom, of which censure may be sphiled to some details, but which is not to be overhauled, as they say. Law is the perfection of reason. A learned judge once tried to put down with this maxim some rebellious plaintiff: and the answer was, That may be, my Lord, but it does not follow that lawyers are the perfection of reasoners. Here was the great blot, hit in the fewest words. The Riglish law wanted a lawyer by practice, to turn the thoughts of his contemporaries to the whole question, upon principles actually applied to details. Bentham now comes before us in our own tengue. His own Benthamese, which very few of the Ringlish ever understood,

Bentham was not adverse to all institutions from early preposession, though he began with doubt and difficulty. He managed to subscribe the thirty-nine articles at Onford. In his hesitation, he applied to the efficial scraple-killer of his college, an officer whose proper designation we do not know. All the satisfaction he got was an assurance that it was very presumptuous in a young mind to set itself up against the declaims of holy and learned men. This asswer produced its effect, and the subscription was made;

The circumstances of our time are bringing forward

The creumstances of our time are bringing forward this question under new points of view. The Protestant theologian grants divorce in cases of infidelity: the Protestant legislator made a special Act of the legislature necessary. In process of time, the injustice of a mode of relief which was open only to the rich forced an easier remedy; and we now begin to see more divorce granted in a day than the House of Lords was asked for in two years. Collusions, no doubt, must occur sometimes; as yet there is great reason to thick the Judges have not often been deceived. But, as the plan works on, and talent is directed towards it, will not the vast increase of the number of divorces produce an irresistible conviction that collusive infidelity for the sake of divorce has become a system? Then will arise the question whether the number of divorces would be augmented if they were allowed at the joint eleasure of the parties. And to this will be joined the question whether the law, if it should allow such extension, would stand in any different relation to the offence against Christian morals from that in which it stands when it permis bigotry, covetuences, or deliberate lying for the sake of gain.

Bentham has couched a two-edged argument in very for many and control or the control of the coverage argument in very for many control or the coverage argument in very for many control or the coverage argument in very for many coveraged argument in very for many that in which it stands when it permits bigotry, covetouaness, or deliberate lying for the sake of gain.

Bentham has couched a two-edged argument in very few words: "Divorces are not common in those countries where they have been a long item permitted."
We noticed, some years ago, a singular confirmation of this statement. A correspondent of the Times, shortly before the Crimean war, wrote from Constantinople that the Grand Vinier, in the divan, speaking of some Russian proposition, declared he would divorce his wife, before he would consent:
this, added the narrator, is the strongest from of expression a Turk can use. We were rather startled, and somewhat amused, to find that a phrese of mongamic form, treating dissolution of marriage as the most unlikely of all things, should be a proverb in the land of polyg way and unrestricted divorce. But the proverb only abadows forth the stare of things which produced it; and whether it will furnish, when all points of view are properly taken, more of an argument for extension of divorce, or agains: it, can only be settled in that good time—coming, we hope and believe—to which we have alluded.

The section on matrimony is one of those which are most characteristic of Bentham's freedom of thought rve— to which we have alluded. he section on matrimony is one of those which are t characteristic of Bentham's freedom of thought and boldners of suggestion. The ladies will look curiously at it, to see how an old bachelor handles the subject; they will find that he considers fair treatment of women decidedly useful. Readers, in general, who know little of Bentham, will not think the work so radied as they expected to find it. But they must remembe that years, have gone by, and times are changed, as much genthamism has been heard from the Trassry Bench, and many charges in law have sucked of utilitarianism, and been made in its name. The dreaded radical is now the very man to be read for civil-service examinations.

COTTON SUPPLY ASSOCIATION.

At the weekly meeting of the Present Company of the Prese

At the weekly meeting of the Executive Committee, on the 5th, a letter was read, enclosing a sample of cotton grown in the Kennedy district of North Cucensiand, from Egyptian seed supplied by the association, which was planted in October and gathered in February. The writer appears to have been the first person who has tried to introduce cotton cultivation at Port Denison, and he state the his experiment has succeeded well.—The Victorian Cotton Company at Moreton Bay has furnished a small quantity of Sea Island seed for distribution, with a view to test the soil and climate of different parts of the northern districts of the colony. The sample sent is remarkably good, and was value at 28.8d per lb—A letter was received from Queen land, describing the excessive raiss and consequent floods, which have inflieted considerable damage upst the cotton crop, and the lishflirty to which at a critical stage of the growth will, it is feared, prove a serior hindrance to the cultivation of cotton in Queensland. The writer farewards a small sample grown under reculiar circumstances, from some seeds which had falle with rubbish upon rough ground, the plants from which were afterwards transferred to the garden. He has now some acres planted with cutton shot fitteen miles from Brisbane, on the South Fishver, and the fact that the plants are producing the second year seems to indicate that they are perennial. The sample, though too small for accurate estimate, was valued at 2s 10d. to is per pound. Another sample of Sea Island count from Queensland, was valued at 3s. 9d. to it, plb. The letter accompanying it states that it has be given by some emigrants on their own farm at it unction Pens, Ipswich, from seed granted to the by the association in March, 1869, and that the entered upon their land in the following August—letter from Buenos Ayres, referring to the ferr which the President of the Republic of Paragay making to extend the growth of cotton, states that for pot its year is expected to a mount to 4009 arobs. A sample gro will also be free of duty for ten years, as also the se portation of the cotton produced by the new undo taking. Letters were received from Natal, statis that the various private individuals are plantin cotton on a small scale, who will extend the operations should their present experiments pro satisfactory. The great uncertainty of labour hitherto been the principal hindrance, and mikes doubtful whether the cultivation of cotton can be dyended on for the future. The New Cotton Compas have shout 700 acres planted, and in different dies ilors in small patches there are about five hundra acres more. The season has been favourable, with exception of heavy rains at the end of last year, as cotton is now considered a profitable investment, as is commanding universal attention. The liberal contragement given by the Cotton Company, and the a vances made on the growing crops, have be most beneficial. This season's crop is not coming rapidly to market, and is readily as at from 5d, to 8d, per 1b, in the seed. The favourable prices are exerting a stimulating fluence. A letter from the British consulate, Piras states that many parts of Greece are this year for first time growing cotton. The owners of land agricultural labourers are feeling the benefit of in new source of wealth, and, from the interest manifest by all classes, it is expected that cotton will be a tensively cultivated. A letter from Nosous, Fi states that arrangements are in progress by the write or hipping about twenty tons of cotton to the ast citation, although his premises, with a large quant of cotton and other goods, have been burnt down dispatch was received from the Governor of West Australia, with various samples of cotton, and demant to their cultivation.

PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS.

PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—On Saturday list Mr. Jefferson appeared as Rip Van Winkle before a densely crowded house. He is so well known in this character, and his impersonation is so fully appreciated by the patrons of the drams, as to render any lengthened notice supererogatory. The play depends for success entirely upon this one part—it matters not how well the others may be sustained, without a thorough "Rip" it would fall flat. The primitive Yankee of the village of Catskill—with his partiality for fun and "schnaps," the idol of all the village children, and an incorrigibly happy husband, to the great disgust of his "frau,"—is amusingly sustained, and the points are fercially illustrated by Mr. Jefferson; but his acting in the last act, after Rip has risen from his twenty years map, cannot, we imagine, be surpassed by any strist on the stage. With all the extravagance of legendary incident, there are many truthful passages contained in it, particularly in the old man's wanderings and inquiries, in which Jefferson with consummate art so blends the comic and serious elements of the character as to excite laughter and draw tears almost at the same instant. A more touching and yet perfectly natural bit can hardly be conceived than his exclamation "How soon we are forgotten," when, is reply to all his queries, he finds that even in his native village the name of Rip Van Winkle is scarcely remembered. The gradual change from joy to grief on hearing of the death of his wife, and the utter inability to comprehend that twenty years have passed away since he dropped saltep on the top of the Catskill Mountain, were admirable points of acting. It is almost needless to say the suddence were delighted to excess. Mrs. Crooby's Dame Van Winkle was also an excellent performance. There are a vast number of other character, which were generally well sustained, but they are subordinate. The farce of "Nan the Good, for-Nathing," followed, in which Miss Gougenheim persons to get a day to the person, it is also an excellent but of good house. The performances this evening are "The Octoroon," in which Mr. Jefferson appears as Salm Scudder, and the farce of the "Spectre Bridegroom."

Victoria Theaver.—On Monday evening last Miss Edith Mitchell made her debut in Sydney, in a drama written expressly for her, entitled "The Lidoness of the Forest." The incidents are supposed to occur in America, and introduces life in the backwoods, with now and then an episode in the history of slavery. Miss Mitchell possesses many qualities for histricolic success, which, however, require experience and culture for their use. Her voice is exit mely powerful, but occasionally she permits it to get beyond its natural range, and hence arises a difficulty of pronunciation. It must, however, be borne in mind that this is the fault of the school in which she was taught, and by care may be easily avoided. In many passages of the play this lady evinced considerable talent in passing from one passion to another, and in the sudden subduing of rage from the effect of womanly affection. Miss Mitchell was frequently applauded by the audience. Mrs. Charles Poole, Mr. Joseph Rayner, Mr. Miran, and Mr. Blossom (the late clown of Button's circus), also appeared, and ably supported the debutante. The "Hunter of the "Alpg." in which Mr. Rayner appeared as Felix, and Mrs. Poole as Helena, concluded the performances. On Tuesday, the "Lioness of the Forest' was repeated, and judiciously curtailed in some parts; and, on the whole, it was better performed than on the previous night. On Wednesday the same bill was presented. On Thursday, Miss Mitchell sustained the character of Agnes de Vere, in the well-known drame entitled "The Poisoner," and afterwards Madeleine in the drama "Three eras in the life of a woman." Both character were well developed, with the exceptions above referred to, and were received by the audience with warm expressions of approbation. When the great attraction at the opposite house is taken into account, the house have been every good. This evening Miss Mitche

The following extracts from letters addressed by Messis. Macondrey and Co., of San Francisco, to a Sydney firm, have been handed us for publication:—
(Extract from Letter per Dashing Wave, dated San Francisco, St. Buly, 1863).

"We have no change to note in our market of much consequence since our last respects. Wheat remains firm at 3 dollars 50 cents for good shipping lots. Flour, superfine, in quarter-sacks, 7 dollars 12 cents in to 7 dollars 13 cents in to 7 dollars 13 cents in the fishers, 8 dollars in the same of the same have had from your quarter since our last. There is no vessel here that we are aware of that is to lead grain for your quarter. The T. W. House and several other vessels are expected to arrive from Sydory and McBourne, but we doubt if any of them take back a carge of grain or flour."

The following letter, from another San Francisco house, addressed to a McBourne firm, has also been placed at cur disposal:

San Francisco, July 8, 1864.

Dest Sira,—Since we addressed you our market shows increased firmness. Very little grain is offerieg, and our milliers are eager buyers of all they can get. The farmers and dealers seem all to be strengthened in their opinion that we have not enough for our own wants, and that we shall have to import flour either from New York or Chili. We quote to-day—Superine flour, quarter-sacks, 8 dollars 25 ocats to 8 dollars 15 cents; extra ditto, quarter-sacks, 8 dollars 25 ocats to 8 dollars 15 cents; carra ditto, quarter-sacks, 8 dollars 25 ocats to 8 dollars 15 cents to 3 dollars 150 cents; barley, new, 3 dollars 6 dollars 37 cents to 3 dollars 150 cents; barley, new, 3 dollars 6 cents to 6 dollars 150 cents; carra ditto, quarter-sacks, 8 dollars 250 cents ocats of the same to a dollars 150 cents; barley, new, 3 dollars 6 cents to 6 dollars 150 cents; dollars

Flour.—The market continues very firm, and as stocks are decreasing, holders will not sell except at extreme rates. The quotations are still as follows:—Adelaide, £25; Californian, £24; Chili, £23. Wheat is very firm, and sales of Adelaide have been made at 11s. per bushel.

Messrs L. B. Threlkeld and Co. held an auction sale on Tuesday last, at which they disposed of large quantities of general groceries, and also cleared the balance of Mauritius sugars ex Retina, white crystale selling for £43 per ton, duty paid; fine counter, £38 to £40 2s. 6d.; ration, £30 to £32. Several parcels of tea were sold, realising an advance on the sales of the previous week. The demand for sugars, suitable for ration purposes and the country trade, continues active, about 300 tens having been placed privately since the sale. The same Messrs. L. B. Our dates from Auckland are to the 9th instant. The Daily Southern Cross reports as follows:—

There is very little to note with respect to business during the past month. It has certainly been doller than during the preceding one. The weather has not been favourable for a considerable portion of it, but it is now very fine, and promises to continue so. The character of the business has been principally for immediate wants, there bring no desire apparently to speculate; in fact, the uncertainty that hangs over us, as it respects peace or war, induces caution. Generally speaking, a very safe business is done, and excepting s few soiliary complaints here and there, the commercial men of Auchland have no cause to complain. Stocks are still heavy, but we are glad to say that the imports for July amount to £133,071 and ofference on the amount of specie included in the summary that is £768 more this month, our imports are actually $15,342 less this month than they were last. This is satisfactory, for the market is even how glutted, and there are several cargoos on the way.

market is even how giutted, and there are several cargoes on the ways, flour market has recently become depressed, much to the state target of the consumers, and now fine flour can be bought for £25 per ton, and even hese at absettom, the state of the supply should be kept up or there will be another rise. The value of the flour imported in July was £15,85°; last month it was £6586, and with the large demand that exists here it can easily be seen that the decrease will some cause an unfavourable rife or unires it is guarded against. There cannot be a large stock of flour now on hand, and at the price it can be bought for in Adelaide, £16 per ton, there is a good margin for exportation here.

PAPER.—On SATURDAY, the lat of October, will be published the first number of a new weekly journal, with which will be incorporated the Werkly Arous, the Yroman, and the Examiner.

In making this aunouscement, the propriators of the above mentuand journals deem it their day to state briefly the reasons which have led to the amalgamation of three periodicals receiving so gratifying a measure of public approbation and support. Each of the three journals has, in its particular sphere, or just a large amount of accouragement, and each has or just a large amount of accouragement, and each has educatored to repy its residers by sparing no exertion to descrive their patronage. While the Examiner has addressed itself thirty to the literary public, and the Yroman has pursued, with ever-increasing success, the development of the material resources of the colony, the Werkly Argue has compressed into its ample columns all the varied political and social intelligence of the day. A large portion, however, of the matter contained in each of these journals has been commen to all; and it is mainly with reference to this objectionable feature that the present change has been decided upon. The proprietors consider that the time has arrived when the public objects for which the Werkly Argue, the Yroman, and the Examiner was encoessively commenced, can be best served by the issue of a single journal, which shall preserve and extend the distinctive utilities of sither publication, and by their union insure a wider collective sphere of sotion than they could separately enjoy. It is thought, moreover, that in this way a great waste of power will be avoided, and a concentration of ability and energy be secured which could mot otherwise be made available.

The primary object, therefore, of The Averralastan will be the combination and extension of all the leading characteristics of the three journals it is about to superseds. But the new paper will by no means confine itself within the limits prescribed to these journals. It is intended to meet the requirements of an Australian as well as a purely Victorian public, and at the same time

Terms at sale.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from JOHN WHITFORD, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on MONDAY, 31st October, at 11 o'clock,
The above valuable agricultural property,
ROSEBROOK FARM contains about 230 acres of very rich land, having about HALF A MILE FRONTAGE to the HUNTER BIVER, and is securely enclosed with a substantial three-rail fence. It is subdivided into several paddocks, and about 50 acres have been CLRARSD and brought under cultivation; 30 acres of which are now under lecerue.

ROSEBROOK HOUSE is a well-built family residence, containing nine rooms, with frost verandah and balcony, and large basement used as collar and dairy. It is built of out stone, with shated roof; and the whole of the work internal and external is of the very best description, and well finished.

The other improvements are numerous, and comprise a four-stall stable and coschlouse; a large barn, and stock-and well finished.

The other improvements are numerous, and comprise a four-stall stable and coachhouse; a large bara, and stockyard, divided into three compariments, fitted with calf-pen and milking balls for carrying on an extensive dairy. There is also an orchard and oratgery of about two acres, planted with a variety of the CHOICEST trees.

This property can be with confidence recommunended to the attention of parties looking out for an investment in a really good country estate, with a capital residence and numerous improvements, all in first-rate order. The house, which was built by the present propriets without regard to cost, is very complete, and stands on an elevated position, out of reach of all floods, and commands extensive views of the surrounding country.

The land is of a very rich description, partions of it having yielded thirty-five bushels of wheat to the acre. As a whole, it contains the comforts of a commodious country residence, with the advantage of carrying on a large and profitable dairy and agricultural establishment, the neighbouring town and district, affording a ready market for all produes.

The Great Northern Railway line will pass through or in close proximity to the estate; and the station at Maswell-brook, which is expected to be open for traffic in little more than twelve months, will in all probability remain the terminus for many years, giving a large additional value to this important property.

Upon one pertion of the land is a large quarry of the building stone, which has already furnished the material for most of the premises in and around Muswellbrook.

An impection of Rosehrovk is specially invited prior to the sale, and every facility for that purpose will be granted to intending purchasers.

Terms at sale.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the proprietor, JOHN WHITFORD, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Roome, Pitt-street, Sydney, on TURSDAY, 1st November, at 11 o'clock.

The above valuable pastoral property.

The THORY WEE WAA STATION is situated on the RIVER NAMOI, about 20 miles from WALGETT, and has shout ten miles frontage to the river. The run consiste principally of richly grassed plains, divided by thisly timbered country, and abounds is FATTENING HEBBAGE, as well as MYALL and SALT BUSH. During the late severe floods on the Mamot this station did not suffer, only a few acres being intundated. Thory Wee Was has for a number of years been worked with cattle, and proved highly profitable, but the country is equally adapted for sheep, and with a small onlay for a further supply of water on the back run, it could easily be made to carry 20,000 sheep in all seasons in addition to a small herd of cattle.

This station is surrounded by other first class properties, including Cumlach, wand by Massrs. Glass and Corrigan, and the well known runs belonging to Mr. Richards and Edward King Cox, Esq.

The improvements comprise a comfortable four-roomed cottage, with shingled roof, a but of 4 rooms, large stockyard capable of working 3000 head of cattle, three-rail horse paddock of about 70 acres.

The Homestead, &c., stand on purchased land, which parcel, containing 60 acres, would be reckoned to the purchaser at cost price.

With these stations will be sold a herd of 2500 HEAD OF CATTLE. more or less.

purchaser at cost price.

With these stations will be sold a hard of 2500 HEAD OF CATTLE, more or less, all QUIET and WELL BRED, being the produce of imported bulls, and others purchased from William Lee, ks.q., of Bathurst. They will be mustered, and on expiry of term for delivery the right of brand will be given to the purchaser; also the following abosp, viz:

1560 ewes, now lambing, 3 and 4 years old, more or less 600 wethers, 3 and 4 years old, ditto
859 hoggets, mixed sexes, ditto

3000 sheep, more or less. These sheep were purchased from the flocks of W. H. Suttor, Krq., and are a choice lot.

"." Stores, stock-horses, dray, with gear complete, ten working bulledrs, implements, &co., to be taken by valuation in the usual way.

The static law and the sale of the above valuable property, and invite its inspection by intending purchasers.

The static is now in capital working order, and for its size will bear comparison as a produbble investment with any cattle preperty in the noted Liverpool Plains district. A draught of fat cattle will be ready for the purchaser immediately on his taking presention. The last lot sold in July realised the highest market pice, and the JW brand has always ranked amongst the best cattle brought to the Sydrey market.
